Ballots Missing in Lexington Recount

3 VOTES HOLD KEY TO SETTLE CLERK DISPUTE

Election Board Head Orders Probe as Check-Up Reveals Discrepancies.

TOTALS STILL UNCHANGED

Neither Candidate to Be Given Office Until Ballots Are Found, Balliet Says.

An investigation of the vote cast in Precinct A of Troy township in the Nov. 2 election will be launched next week following the discovery last night that three ballots cast in the precinct were missing, George C. Balliet, president of the county board of elections, said today.

The discrepancy was discovered in a recount of the ballots cast for village clerk in Lexington which was made at the request of J. H. Wiles, incumbent, defeated by one vote by Robert Lawrence.

Count Unchanged.

The recount left the precinct count for clerk unchanged at 125 votes for Lawerence and 124 for Wiles, the same as the first official count, Balliet said, however, that neither candidate will be declared elected until the missing ballots are found and examined.

The four precinct judges, who were present for the recount last night, were unable to account for the loss of the ballots. Balliet said it was possible that the ballots had been damaged or mistakenly marked and held out in the tabulation by the precinct officials.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott will be called on to open the investigation, Balliet said. The three votes would affect only the clerk results, since none of the other races were close enough to be changed by a three-vote difference.

Judges who were in charge of the precinct ballot boxes in the election were Lowell McIntyre, E. R. Castor, Paul Minnear and Charles W. Sowers.

6 Rescued, 23 Aboard Ship Still Missing

Tanker Locates Part of Crew In Lifeboat of Sunken Freighter.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Radio Marine corporation today reported a lifeboat containing six men had been picked up at Diamond Shoals off Cape Hatteras, at 9:24 E. S. T. today, five hours after the Greek freighter Tzenny Chandris sent out distress signals.

The boat was sighted and picked up by the C. D. Mallory tanker Swiftsure. The rescued seamen, who spoke Greek, managed to convey the idea that another lifeboat, containing 14 men, was afloat.

Th Swiftsure at once began a search for the other boat.

The messages from the Swiftsure, indicated that they had not been able to understand the name of the ship from which the lifeboats had come.

Called For Help.

It was assumed by the Radio Marine, however, that the rescued men were members of the crew of the Tzenny Chandris, which had sent out an S. O. S. call at 4:20 a. m., E. S. T.

The Tzenny Chandris was purchased recently in Baltimore from the American government by a Greek syndicate. It cleared from Moreheadcity, N. C., Thursday, for Rotterdam, carrying a cargo of scalp iron and a crew of 29 men, according to owner's representatives here.

Radio Marine notified all ships in the vicinity of Diamond Shoals to search for traces of the Tzenny Chandris and the surviving members of its crew.

Apparently 23 men are unaccounted for, it was pointed out. There were no passengers aboard, owners representatives said. Mackay Radio later reported the freighter had sunk and that coast guards were searching for the missing men.

The estimated location of the Tzenny Chandris at the time of its S. O. S. was believed to be approximately thirty to forty miles northeast of Diamond Shoals.

FEDERAL MEN JAIL PAROLED O.S.R. INMATES

Kidnapers' Victim Suffering From Beating; Ex-Convict Also In Custody.

Two paroled inmates of the Mansfield reformatory were held in Huntington, W. Va., today by federal authorities in the kidnaping of a 79-year-old Huntington retired minister, and the attempted extortion of $50,000 ransom from his family.

They are John Travis and Orville Atkins, both 24, who with Arnett Booth, 46, an ex-convict, were seized by federal agents and West Virginia officers within 24 hours after a farmer yesterday found Dr. James I. Seder, exhausted and bruised near an abandoned mine where he had been held prisoner for 11 days.

Used Different Names.

Travis was committed to the reformatory under the name of James Wensfield. Committed at the same time, and for the same crime, that of auto theft, was Pete Adams. Federal authorities, who arrested the trio yesterday, said they believed Adams and Orville Atkins, also arrested in connection with the kidnaping, were the same person.

Travis and Adams or Atkins were sentenced from Pickaway county, Jan. 15, 1936, to serve from one to 15 years. Both were paroled July 1, to go to West Virginia.

Reformatory records showed today that both had sent in parole reports in October, from Huntington.

According to police records, Booth was sentenced to five years in the West Virginia Penitentiary on Jan 29, 1936, for a sex crime, and was pardoned 10 months later.

Two Plead Guilty.

Booth and Travis pleaded guilty to extortion charges when arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles E. Steed in Huntington today, United Press dispatches said. Atkins, who was said to have admitted to authorities that he participated in the abduction, was to be

Japs Driving Chinese Farther Back in Hills

China's Retreating Forces Rushed Into Mass Flight From Stronghold West of Shanghai — Walled City of Kiating Falls as Tanks Enter Gates.

SHANGHAI — (UP) — Japanese troops have smashed through the Chinese defense lines 15 miles northwest of Shanghai, it was announced today, and it was believed that the Chinese would be forced to withdraw westward all along the northern part of their line.

The move was the second phase of the Japanese drive to push the Chinese far westward of Shanghai and isolate them.

Important Victory.

Japanese troops advancing from the northeast and southeast hit the Chinese "Chiang Kai-Shek" line at Kiating, 15 miles northwest of Shanghai, one of its strongest points. Tanks entered the city at 9 a. m., a Japanese spokesman asserted, and infantry consolidated the capture at 11.

The victory was regarded as one of the biggest single ones of the Shanghai campaign. Kiating has a strong wall and is bounded on three sides by deep creeks. Nevertheless, according to the Japanese, there was little resistance.

Chinese admitted that at the south end of their long line, in the Sunkiang sector southwest of Shanghai, their men were withdrawing westward to the hills where they might resist to better effect.

Japan's victory was bringing normality to Shanghai today. Out in the suburbs, United Press correspondents found the streets and fields dotted with bodies of Chinese soldiers and farmers. Many lay in ditches. The thunder of guns was faintly audible in the suburbs, but in Shanghai proper there was no sound of the war that had raged continuously for a little more than three months.

CALLS COUNCIL

Mayor Calls Special Meeting on Fire Hose Needs.

Mayor Earl A. McFarland today called a special session of city council for Tuesday night to consider the replacing some of the city's worn out fire hose and to clean up miscellaneous business left over from last week's regular session.

Council's finance committee met last Sunday to take up the fire hose problem after the lines broke twice while firemen were fighting a blaze at a North Main street home two weeks ago.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger has requested council to purchase 2,500 feet of hose at the cost of $1,080 to replace worn out sections.

Councilman C. N. Shultz pointed out, however, that only part of the request will be granted due to the city's financial status.

Other legislation on file with Council Clerk William J. Beer calls the transfer of funds in various municipal departments.

Runaway Balloon Darkens Town In 'Dash' Over France

BOULOGNE-SUR-MER, France—(AP)—A runaway sausage balloon of the British Royal air force, trailing a cable across high tension wires, escaped pursuers today on its madcap course over northern France.

The balloon, carrying thousands of dollars worth of meteorological instruments, cut high tension wires last night near Audruicq, causing a short circuit and setting the town's post office afire.

The homes of an estimated 1,000,000 inhabitants of northern France were plunged into darkness.

The balloon, which snapped its mooring at an airdrome near Ramsgate last night and crossed the English channel, was reported drifting toward Belgium. Although its cable still dangled, its contact with electric wires had not damaged it.

The balloon was described in London as one of a number stationed at Royal air force airdromes throughout England to register wind currents and temperatures at various heights. The information was used for air-weather charts.

143 on City's 'Wanted' List Facing Arrest If They Return to This County

Old Charges Range From Murder to Trapping Fur Bearing Animals.

Wanted—143 men and women—all former Mansfielders.

A check of affidavits on file in the criminal division of the municipal court today disclosed that 143 persons are wanted on charges ranging from murder to trapping fur bearing animals out of season. None of them has ever been located.

Warrants for their arrest have been issued and are in the hands of the police department or the sheriff's office and should any of them make their appearance in Richland county, they face arrest and a stay in jail.

Some of the affidavits kept on file in the municipal court office in the city building, have begun to color with age. One order for arrest, charging violation of an NRA code dates back to 1934. Since the NRA has been long since held unconstitutional by the supreme court, there isn't any chance however of this affidavit being served even if the person named was found.

Out of the 28 different classifications of crime listed for which the persons are wanted, non-support heads the list.

There are 13 persons wanted for grand larceny, the records show. Next in line are statutory charges against 12 men, petit larceny and embezzlement with nine each. Seven each are sought for forgery, assault and battery, breaking and entering and issuing a check with intent to defraud.

Other charges include murder, abandonment, defrauding an innkeeper, removing mortgaged property from the county, issuing checks with insufficient funds, cutting with intent to wound, rape, trespassing, careless and reckless driving, and auto theft.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I was nearer to my father than Dicky, so I took the note he was handing over to us for inspection. But I beckoned to my husband with my other hand and then held the note up so that we could read it together.

"We have information that you are interested in grass, spring foliage, shamrocks and Ireland," the note began, crazily, with neither salutation nor date line. "We think you might be interested in looking at our stock of mineral fertilizer. We have an especially fine line. Sample and prices sent on refuest. If interested, put personal in all morning and afternoon New York papers, addressed 'Ireland,' saying merely 'Yes' or 'No,' and sign it 'S. C.' Reverse English, n'est ce pas?"

The note ended on that, with no signature. It was not typed, but composed of words cut apparently from newspapers and pasted upon sheets of note paper of the most ordinary variety, such as is sold in thousands of stores throughout the country.

"Of all the crazy messages I ever read, this takes the cake!" Dicky said, and then with a low whistle stared at my father, whose eyes mirrored comprehension of the jargon he had just finished reading. I uttered a choked ejaculation at the fantastic notion which had just flashed into my mind.

Means Emeralds?

"The emeralds!" I faltered. "Queen Olga's missing emerald necklace! Do you think they've found it!"

My father held out his hand for the paper again, and Dicky handed it back to him.

"I don't see what else it can mean," he said slowly, scanning the thing again. "Grass, spring foliage, shamrocks and Ireland—all have one thing in common, the words 'green' and 'emerald' are applicable to all of them. The word 'mineral' is also a clue.

"There is only one deuction to be made," he went on. "Someone has the emeralds and knows that I will, naturally, be interested in their return. And that someone is Jack Leslie, I have no doubt."

"There is one question which occurs to me," Dicky said with hesitant deference.

"Put it," my father returned, smiling.

"Why shouldn't Leslie have communicated with Veritzen about these, instead of you? He must know that Veritzen could be stung for a large sum of money for ransom, and he also must have a lively fear of what the result of negotiatons with you might be."

Leslie Not Afraid.

"You are wrong on that last point," my father said gravely. 'Leslie's colossal conceit forbids him having a lively fear of anyone. Witness the flippancy of the instructions for my signature. And while he probably will ask a big ransom, what he really wants from me is a promise of immunity, here, or an opportunity to get out of the country safely."

"Whew!" Dicky exclaimed. "He's a modest soul! Do you mean, he's idiot enough to expect you'll make any sort of arrangement with him?"

'He no doubt is expecting something of the kind," said my father, firmly. "For my part I am glad of his cocksureness. It is just so much grist for my mill. Will you take charge of the newspaper angle of this, Richard?"

"Of course," Dicky answered promptly. "When do you want the personals inserted?"

"Day after tomorrow will do," my father said thoughtfully. 'I'd like him to have a day of uncertainty before he receives an answer. Sometime tomorrow write to every paper in New York City, inserting the personal just as he has outlined it, and stipulating that it appear day after tomorrow. Then there will be nothing else to do except take your usual precautions against strangers lurking around the place."

"How about this messenger?" Dicky asked. "Do you think he's probably skulking around, and will see your departure?"

"Most probably," my father replied. "If he does, I shall be very glad. He will report to Leslie that I have hurried away the next morning after receiving the message. Then, when there is a delay in the personals, he may begin to worry a little, which will be salutary for him."

"I take it, then, you're not particularly afraid of Jack Leslie's trailing your movements?" Dicky asked.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Nov. 14.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a very favorable one for all ecclesiastical, cultural and social vocations and avocations, although necessary business matters could be profitably engineered. But keep calm. Very lively social functions may develop a situation of sudden romance of a rather hectic nature. Be circumspect.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a very lively year in business, with especially profitable prospects for quick openings in new directions. The energies will be under high pitch. In private affiliations sudden romance blooms with very festive and ardent precipitation, but be fairly circumspect.

A child born on this day may be notably lively, enterprising and versatile, and may have a keen mind and dependable judgment. Its private life should be pleasant and romantic.

* * *

For Monday, Nov. 15.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a fairly active day with profitable new business and the renewal of desirable contracts. An element of secrecy or tacit understanding may be necessary to put these over, but be careful that there are no loopholes for confusion or misconstruction. A sudden journey is in order. Be cautious in employment.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a fairly progressive and profitable year in new business, particularly in new arrangements and contracts. If secret or tacit agreements be desirable, be careful to forestall all misinterpretations or confusions. Be decisive. An unexpected journey may promote such new projects.

A child born on this day may be energetic, versatile, alert for a quick chance or speculative coup. It may be generally successful and personally sought for its witty and cheerful companionship.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

READ HIS HOLDING

IF YOU TRY to do a bit of card reading on your partner's hand, you sometimes can tell almost exactly what he has to hold in order to have made some particular bid. This can then indicate a clear cut line of defense whereby, perhaps, you should give him a discouraging signal in the suit he has led and thereby cause him to shift to another suit in which you and he have the damaging pasteboards.

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

After two passes, the bidding on this deal was started by East with 1-Diamond, North call 2-Clubs, East 2-Diamonds, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

When the diamond K was cashed, East played the 8 and when the A was played East continued the signal by playing the 4. Following his partner's instructions, West led another diamond, which South ruffed. Two rounds of trumps were now drawn and three spades were discarded on North's setup clubs. The declarer therefore made five on a contract in which he should have been set.

Even though West's third hand bid might have been rather weak, it was logical to assume that he held some cards outside of the diamonds. Hearts and clubs were accounted for, so any side strength held by West was evidently in spades. East's correct procedure, holding four diamonds himself, was not to encourage diamond leads but to hope that by playing a discouraging card West would switch to a spade. Played in that way three spades and two diamonds could have been taken before the declarer gained control.

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

MORROW PAYS UP DELINQUENT TAX ACCOUNTS

Unpaid Bills Total $42,000 as Compared to $105,000 In 1932, County Reports.

MT. GILEAD — With publication of the list of delinquent real estate taxpayers in Morrow county to be made Nov. 18, payment of delinquent taxes has shown a considerable increase within the last week, Treasurer W. A. Piper said today.

Letters were sent to 350 persons Nov. 1, notifying them of the amount delinquent and informing them that they would have until Nov. 16 to pay and avoid publication. Approximately 75 have paid their back taxes at the treasurer's office since that time.

Since the regular June real estate collection closed several weeks ago, there has been $4,324 in delinquent taxes paid, according to Piper. At the close of the collection the total delinquency, which in 1932 was $105,632, had been reduced to $42,000.

Where delinquencies are not paid up before Tuesday, Nov. 16, the name of the property owner, the description of the property and the amount delinquent will be published. Such publication is now mandatory under a law passed at the last session of the general assembly. No publication of delinquency has been made here since 1931.

OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

BUCYRUS—A family dinner at noon Sunday will mark the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Yaussy, who came to live on a farm near Bucyrus from Hannibal, O., in 1906. Open house in the afternoon will be included in the day's events.

The celebration will be held at the family home on Tiffin street where the Yaussys have made their home since Mr. Yaussy's retirement from farming several years ago.

Among those expected to attend the affair are the couple's five children and 11 grandchildren. The children are Wesley and Lawrence of Bucyrus, Ralph of Holmes-Liberty, Mrs. E. O. Peters of Toledo and Mrs. A. C. Zimmerman of Ridgeton.

GOAL $11,000 SHORT

BUCYRUS — Workers in the Community Chest financial drive were instructed to continue their campaign to raise funds, when the second report of the workers left the chest short of the goal of $11,690. The report was made at a dinner at St. John's Reformed church Friday night.

Heads of shops and firms in the city will be contacted in an attempt to secure 100 per cent contributions. The drive remains several thousand dollars short of the goal.

THEATER

PERHAPS the subtle and skilled directing of the great Lubitch can make Gary Cooper seem real and believable in his new role, but to the bystander it looks like a tough job. For the dignified and sedate and man-of-few-words hero will play a play boy type in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." He has been married seven times before the delectable Claudette Colbert, as the daughter of an impoverished French marquis snaps him up. It doesn't sound like Gary Cooper—although the lanky former Montanian does a neat job with subtle comedy, as in "Mr Deeds" and "Design For Living."

* * *

"The Firefly."

Rudolf Friml's romantic and melodious operetta, "The Firefly," brings Jeanette MacDonald and Allan Jones together to sing such unforgetable songs as "Giannina Mia" and "Sympathy." Warren Williams is the third major player, having the role of the dashing major of Napoleon's staff. The story takes place in Spain and France during the time of King Ferdinand and Napoleon. Miss MacDonald is a lovely and talented spy for Ferdinand, who sings in a Spanish cafe. Jones is in her train of admirers, but through him she is apprehended and sentenced to a firing squad. The music of "The Firefly" is familiar to everyone as it has been used for years on the concert stage, on radio programs and amateur entertainments it opens at the Ohio tomorrow for the first half of the week.

"Bride Wore Red."

A "different" Joan Crawford is found in "The Bride Wore Red" according to reviewers for she plays the Ferenc Molnar heroine with a dash of hard ambition and calculation. Her husband, Franchot Tone, and Robert Young are the two men who settle her destiny between them. Her career starts in a water front cafe at Trieste, where a wealthy and eccentric nobleman dumps his nights winnings at roulette in her lap. Transported by fate to a smart winter resort in the Alps she meets two men—one who can maintain her life on a splendid scale and one who has nothing but a donkey cart and a small position. Tone plays the Swiss postman and Young plays the other man. Billie Burke and Reginald Owen are in the cast. "The Bride Wore Red" is the Madison attraction for the first of the week.

"Swing It Sailor."

Blonds, sailors and football players provide the movie menu at the Majestic for Sunday and Monday. "Swing It Sailor" is filled with blonds and sailors, one of them intent on marrying a blond and another equally intent on preventing it. Wallace Ford, Isabell Jewell and Ray Mayer have the leading roles. The friendship of the two buddies of the navy is threatened when Mayer, long on muscle but short on brains decides to forsake the navy for the joys of home life. Football is the motivating force in "Over The Goal," with June Travis William Hopper and Johnnie Davis. Plots and counter plots at college do little for higher education, but offers entertainment for the movie audiences.

"Broadway Melody of 1938."

TERMITES NO. 1 INSECT ENEMY, CAUSE BIG LOSS

Paint, Chemicals Help to Curb $40,000,000 Annual Damage to U. S. Buildings.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Termites, which can certainly be classed as Insect Enemy Number One, accomplished annually a known property damage in the U. S. amounting to more than forty million dollars. What's more, they are constantly extending their activities over a larger and larger area. Nor do they limit their depradations to old houses.

The wood of a new house is just as appetizing to them as aged timber. Apparently, they can't be destroyed any more than flies can—but—just as flies can be kept out of our homes with the aid of screens, so can termites be excluded by taking precautions.

Precautions Urged.

It is, of course, wisdom to guard against a possible termite invasion when a house is being built or when any sort of wood is placed in or near the ground. Posts, the under portions of porches, steps or sheds should be thoroughly impregnated with termite-repellant chemicals—compositions containing creosote—copper and zinc salts and phenol—sodium fluoride, dinitrophenol—chromates—zinc metaarsenate—zinc chloride—chlorine.

When some of the above compositions are used on wood, it may be necessary to alter painting procedure somewhat in order to obtain satisfactory results. For example, wood treated with creosote compositions or the like should be allowed to weather until the greasy film has been removed. It may be desirable to use special primers to seal in the impregnating compositions which have a tendency to bleed through some types of paint. However, many of the compositions mentioned, especially the zinc salts, present no painting difficulties.

Dr. H. A. Gardner, director of the scientific section of the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer association, in a recent bulletin suggests the usage of bituminous or creosote coatings for the sections of wood that are close to the ground or beneath its surface. Over such coatings he suggests that a coating of copper powder be sprayed so that it will form a copper shield.

"It is believed," he writes, "that properly metallized surfaces of this character will be efficient not only in preventing the entrance of moisture but also will aid in preventing termite damage. It is well known that termites will not crawl over metallic copper."

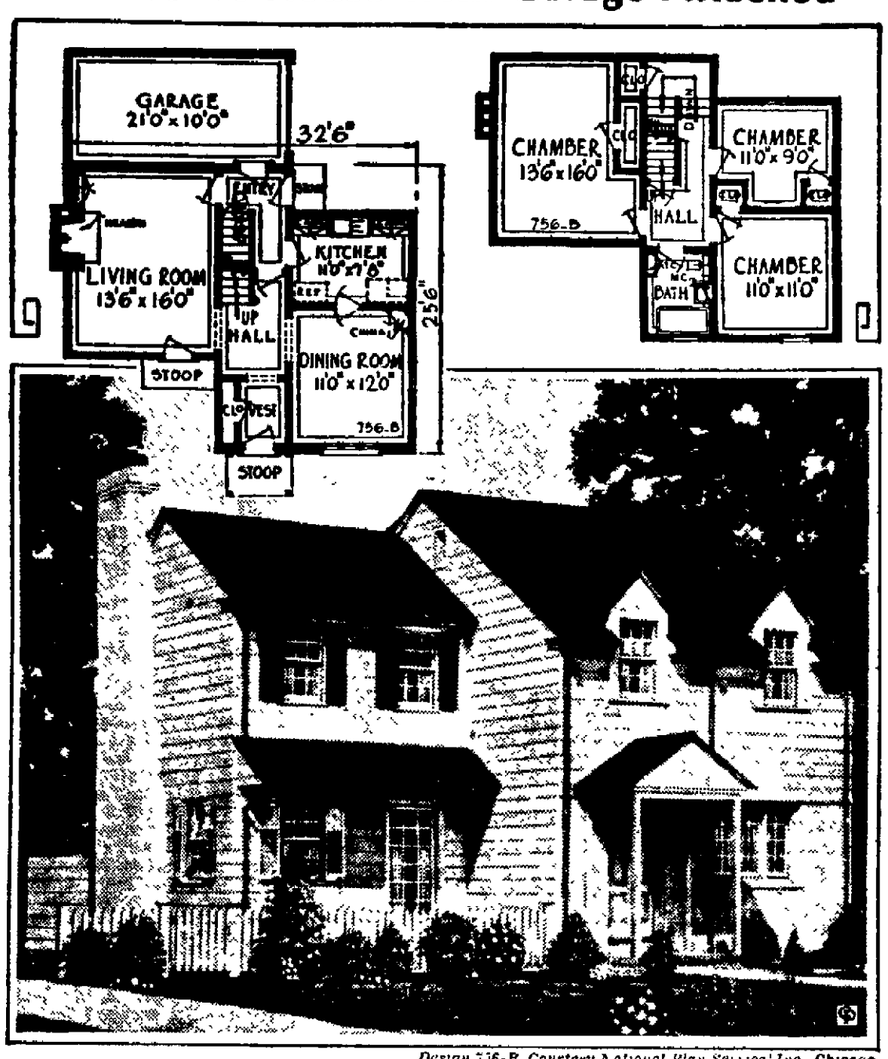
FHA Checking Up On Need For New Areas For Houses

Although the Federal Housing administration is proceeding cautiously with the acceptance of loans for property in new neighborhoods, it recognizes the need for adequate subdivision for small homes and has approved many new neighborhoods of this type.

While it cannot control the opening of subdivisions, the Federal Housing administration can check to some extent the premature development of land through its refusal to insure loans on houses built in new neighborhoods which may be unsuccessful through competition of an already established subdivision. However, the cost of improvements has raised the prices of lots in some neighborhoods to a place where they are not suitable for inexpensive homes. In such cases mortgages on property in new subdivisions where land cost is reasonable may be accepted for insurance.

In other cases new subdivisions are considered to be justified because of the presence of a natural feature which makes the neighborhood particularly desirable or because existing areas contain latest sources of blight which cannot be removed.

Attractive House With Garage Attached



Design 756-B, Courtesy National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

Showing six-room house with garage attached at rear, and containing 21,000 cubic feet.

THIS HOUSE has a number of features that will recommend it to folk who have a yen for owning their own homes.

In the first place, there is an attached garage on the back of the building instead of at the side, which is usual. An entrance from the house to the garage is made through the hall, which runs through the middle of the house. The attached garage allows some economy in construction and much in time.

Another unusual feature is the living room, which occupies what might be called the "wing" of the house, with a fireplace with chimney on the outside. This room is 13 feet 6 inches by 16 feet in dimension. The central hall has a vestibule with coat closet and on the other side of it are the dining room and well-arranged kitchen.

The dining room could serve for the study during the evening, if there are children or young people who have homework to do.

Three bedrooms, the master room the same size as the living room, occupy the second floor, with bath and closets.

This house contains 21,000 cubic feet.

'INDIVIDUALIZED' BATHROOMS REFLECT OWNER PREFERENCES

The many significant improvements made in the styling and design of plumbing fixtures in recent years permit the bathroom in the new house or in a modernized house to be highly individualized in accordance with the personal taste and preference of the owner, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau points out.

No longer are bathrooms as alike as peas in a pod. An infinite variety of combination of fixtures in various styles, designs, and colors may be developed and innumerable kinds of wall and floor coverings may be utilized.

Only a few years ago bathtubs were monotonously alike. Today they are made in a number of distinctive designs with convenient seats at the ends, corner or side.

Not so long ago the lavatory was just a utilitarian washbasin, drab and uninteresting. In recent years artist-designers have restyled the lavatory so that it has taken on a glamorous and colorful beauty. With the addition of an integral shelf at the back, large slab space for toilet articles, attached towel bars and cabinet underneath, this fixture has become much more useful as well as more beautiful.

Closets have been redesigned for quieter flushing action; water saving shower heads have been developed; stunningly beautiful oiled silk shower curtains are available; and faucets and valves, with their handsome chromium finish, have justly been termed "bathroom jewelry."

TUNG OIL FROM CHINA

The Department of Commerce reports that the U. S. consumption of tung oil, which is widely used in the manufacture of paint materials, was 119 million pounds in 1936, costing more than 20 million dollars. Unsettled conditions in China have prevented shipment of the oil from Shanghai.

AIDS PLUMBING DURING WINTER

How can I protect the plumbing in my house against freezing? With the severe temperatures of past winters in mind, many homeowners are asking their plumbing contractors what precautions they should take this winter, the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau points out.

Freezing is most likely to occur in the pipes which run along an outside wall. This hazard should be corrected by re-location of the pipes. If this is impractical, thorough insulation with from two and one-half to three inches of good pipe civering is the only safeguard.

Pipe lines which lead to lawn faucets outside should be equipped with stop and waste valves so that the water may be shut off and the pipe thoroughly drained.

Should any of the piping freeze, the work of thawing it should not be entrusted to a handy-man. It should be done under the supervision of an experienced master plumber. Blow torches or other methods involving open flames are extremely dangerous.

ADD GAY NOTE

Apricot and coral towels add a gay note to a sophisticated bathroom where black is used prominently. The entire wall above the tub is painted silver-grey; the other three are marbelized from the black tile wainscot upward. A black and white linoleum covers the floor and the striped shower curtain is of suede cloth in soft shades of grey.

SUNSHINE EFFECT

If a floor is painted chrome yellow of a medium tone and the walls either white or cream, a cozy, sunshiny effect is produced through reflection. Yellow transparent gauze curtains add to the effect of sunshine—particularly when the room is at the northeast corner of the house. The window shades may be made to contrast or harmonize with your scheme of decoration by painting them. Flat wall paint, thinned with turpentine is used for this purpose. Allow one side to dry thoroughly before turnig over to paint the other side.

They not only involve fire hazards but also permit the generation of high pressures which may cause explosions.

Harmon Stars As Rams Mark Up 5th Loop Victory

Scores Three Touchdowns, Tallies Extra Point as Madison Defeats Bellville, 19 to 12, Under Lights Before Large Crowd.

By CHARLES MARTIN

GENE HARMON is the man of the hour at Madison high today. It was Harmon who last night paved the way for the Rams to remain in the Mid-State league championship race and continue in the select group of undefeated, untied Ohio high school football elevens.

The brilliant halfback scored three touchdowns and converted the only extra point as the green-uniformed Rams defeated an inspired Bellville combine, 19 to 12, in a drizzling rain under the arcs at Madison stadium before one of the largest crowds of the season.

Coach Al Fendrick's proteges registered their fifth consecutive league triumph of the season and now must turn back the unbeaten Mt. Gilead Indians next Friday to win the 1937 championship.

Rams Take Early Lead.

Although Madison snatched a lead it never relinquished in the opening period, Bellville rallied on two occasions to climb within one point of the Rams advantage.

The Bellvillites released a desperate last-minute passing attack in the fourth stanza, but Madison rose to the occasion by intercepting one of the heaves to halt the rally.

Banks Injured.

Bellville's victory hopes were handed a stunning blow early in the second frame when Eugene Banks suffered a broken left arm when tackled.

The Madison-Bellville annual battle seems to be a jinx for Banks. Last year he suffered a fractured collarbone.

The Rams knocked twice at the Bellville touchdown door before they were able to push over a marker. Shortly after the opening kickoff Madison marched to the Bellville eight where Hamilton intercepted a pass.

Bellville punted out to its own 25 and Madison came right back, but Harmon fumbled on the 15 and Howard Clever recovered for Bellville.

The Rams took the next punt from the 35 and chalked up two first downs as they penetrated to the yard stripe. Harmon raced off-tackle to score standing up. He also added the extra point on an end sweep.

Marches 63 Yards for Score.

Bellville climaxed its first touchdown march from its own 33 when Bert Balliett scored from the one. Clever's kick was wide.

Harmon, behind nice interference, galloped 27 yards to the Bellville five to set the stage for Madison's next tally at the close of the third stanza.

On the first play in the last period Harmon slashed off tackle into "pay dirt." Joe Miller's attempted plunge for the point was stopped.

Coach Royd Hodges' warriors came back to tally on Russell Sheriff's bullet-like pass which Balliett snatched on the 10 and romped over. Balliett's plunge for the extra point, which would have tied the score at 13-all, was stopped cold.

Increase Lead.

Madison didn't wait long to increase its lead, however. The Rams started from their own 45 and swept down the field to the Bellville four. Harmon went through tackle to score standing up. Miller's attempted kick was low.

Tries Trick Plays.

With less than a minute left to play, Bellville reached into its bag of trick plays in a desperate attempt to score. On one play five men handled the oval behind the line before Sheriff tossed a 60-yard pass which Bollinger dropped. It was the invaders' last threat as Madison intercepted the next pass.

Madison chalked up 13 first downs to Bellville's 11.

Bob Wilkins and Jack Priess were the outstanding defensive stars for the Rams, with Clever the leading performer for Bellville.

Danville Trips Fredericktown

DANVILLE—Lanning's spectacular 80-yard touchdown return of a kickoff in the fourth period enabled the Danville Blue Devils to break a 13-13 deadlock and defeat a fighting Fredericktown grid machine, 19 to 13, here Friday in the closing Mid-State league game for both clubs.

The nip-and-tuck battle marked the first time this season that Fredericktown has been able to score a point in league competition. The invaders scored markers in the second and third chapters.

Takes Early Lead.

Danville hopped into the lead in the first with Lanning tallying from the four to climax on 80-yard march. Mickley drop-kicked the extra point.

Both aggregations added markers in the second stanza. Danville turned the trick first—after recovering a Fredericktown fumble on the visitors' 43. Mickley raced over from the 13. His plunge for the point was stopped.

Marches 50 Yards.

Fredericktown came back with Stevens plunging over from the seven for the score after a 50-yard march. McClelland plunged over for the point.

Stevens slashed over from the one to climax another drive from midfield to tie the score in the third.

And then Lanning took the next kickoff and after twice reversing his field, raced down the sideline for the winning touchdown.

Grid Fenom

Indications are that Bill de Correvont, 18-year-old Chicago high school student, will be one of the greatest athletes of all times when he goes to college. During his four years in high school Bill has made a touchdown every game, scoring nine in one game in which he carried the ball but 10 times. He also bats .400 in baseball and is an all-around star.

MARION SMOTHERS JACKETS

MARION — Harding High's Presidents knocked Mt. Vernon's N.C.O. title hopes into a cocked hat and at the same time brightened their own chances here last night by trimming the Yellow Jackets, 20-0, in an important conference battle.

The defeat was the second of the conference season for Mt. Vernon and eliminated them from any chance to wi the title. If Galion should lose to Shelby this afternoon, and Marion should take Bucyrus into camp next week, Harding can tie for first place with Galion, as both teams would have but one league defeat against them. Galion, however, can cinch the title, with a perfect record, if it can trim Shelby today.

Marion scored a touchdown in each of the last three periods in a well-played game last night to turn back the Mt. Vernon threat. Castner, Harding left halfback, took a well-timed pass from Diehl on the Mt. Vernon 20 and dashed across the goal for the first score.

Williams, Harding quarterback, broke away for a 38-yard run that brought the fans to their feet in the third period, and went over again in the fourth from the five-yard line after a steady Marion march toward the Mt. Vernon goal.

Marion used but four substitues and Mt. Vernon only two during the entire game.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

PORTLAND, Ore. — (U.P.) — The Pittsburgh Panthers will not be invited to the Rose Bowl this season. Even if they go through their rigorous schedule undefeated—a feat which would stamp them as national champions—they haven't a chance to be in Pasadena on New Year's day.

I first heard that Pittsburgh was not on the list of eligibles when I passed through the midwest. The closer I moved to the coast the more I heard that the Panthers would not be considered. I heard it more emphatic than ever here where the University of Oregon today plays California, the eleven almost certain to be the coast representative in the Jan. 1 extravaganza.

With the Californians here, Rose Bowl talk predominates the conversation of Portland football enthusiasts, because it is certain that if the Golden Bears get by Oregon today and Stanford next Saturday, the Pacific Coast title and the Rose Bowl bid is theirs.

California to Name Opponent.

And California will have the right to name its opponent. In an effort to pin down the reports concerning Pittsburgh, which I know to be true, I sought Ken Priestly, graduate manager of athletics at California, and I asked him point blank how his school felt.

"That is something I can hardly answer," Priestly said. "After all, we haven't been asked ourselves. But I will tell you this, though it may not have any bearing on the matter. If California gets the Bowl bid, we will try to set as an opponent the team of a school which we feel has the same scholastic standards and the same athletic ideals as California, as you probably know California is very anxious to see football in this section operated on a plan similar to that which was recently formed in the east and the one which the Big Ten has had for years. California believes that "likes" should play "likes." That is, that schedules should be drawn up which pits schools of like standards, both academically and athletically, against each other."

Priestly would not say whether or not California considered Pittsburgh as a "like."

Pitt Not Considered.

But from all I can gather from unofficial sources Pittsburgh is not being considered because of one or two reasons.

Either its football is considered too high pressure or its team is considered too strong.

There are many observers here who will tell you that the chief objection to Pittsburgh is that the trouncing it handed Washington last year still is fresh in the memory of all the coaches out here, and none of them care to commit gridiron hari-kari by being caught on the same field with the Panthers.

All I'm sure of is that the Pitts won't be out here.

Pitt seems to be a horrid word on this side of the Continental Divide.

MT. GILEAD WALLOPS RED BIRDS, 20 TO 0

MT. GILEAD—The Indians of Mt. Gilead high chalked up their fifth straight Mid-State league triumph here Friday by walloping Loudonville, 20 to 0, in a circuit tilt that closed the season for the Red Birds.

The victory enabled the Indians to remain in a tie for the Mid-State league lead with the Madison Rams. The two undefeated clubs will tangle next Friday in a tilt here that will decide the championship. Madison is defending the crown.

Mt. Gilead pushed over markers in the first, second and final periods as they spilled the invaders. Londonville resorted to its passing game, but only once, in the opening frame, was it able to penetrate inside the Indians' 30.

The Indians started their first march toward "pay dirt" in the opening minutes of the first period when the "three horsemen" of the Indian backfield, Weller, Kubbs and England, advanced the ball from mid-field to the Loudonville 24 from where Kubbs scored on an end sweep. Weller dropped a shovel pass to Talmadge for the point.

The "gallopin' triumvirate" of the Indians again started the second stanza by advancing the ball to the six and Kubbs again raced over for the tally. Weller's attempted plunge for the point was stopped.

The fourth frame brought another touchdown march by the "three Indians" who advanced the ball from deep in their own territory to the Red Birds' two from which Weller bucked the line for the tally. A pass from Weller to Talmadge converted the point.

Coach Hopkins' Indians registered 11 first downs to the visitors' nine. Talmadge, Indian flankman, turned in a stellar performance on defense throughout the game, while Carter paced his Red Bird teammates in both offensive and defensive work.—By Howard Allen.

Meet In One Of Tourney Bouts Monday

Another of the series of matches in the light heavyweight tournament being staged by the Quality club to find an opponent for the world's champion will get under way Monday night in the Armory ring when four of the leading artists in the 175-pound mat world go into action in a pair of matches over the two-three fall route with an hour and a half time limit.

Of particular interest to Mansfield wrestling fans is the appearance here of Frankie Hart of Holland, one of the classiest and most discussed light heavyweights in the world.

Hart, who is one of the few men to hold a verdict over the Great Mephisto, is to meet Ray Ryan, the Hoboken, N. J., Irishman and former dock hand.

The other tournament contest brings together two other well-known boys, Joe Wheeler of Cleveland and George Wagner, the German strong boy from New York City.

Wagner is a former professional weight lifter, while Wheeler is rather well known by Mansfield fans for having won several contests here last winter.

The opening contest at 8:30 will send two beginners, Bud Steel of Plymouth, O., and John Karvis, Mansfield boy, against each other.

Injuries Force Stars Out as Ohio State Tackles Illinois Before Homecoming Crowd of 60,000 at Columbus.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Close to 60,000 fans were expected to witness today's Western conference grid clash between Illinois and Ohio State at the Buckeye stadium, a host of grads, returning for the annual homecoming, offsetting possible attendance losses due to predictions of unfavorable weather.

Ohio's chance at the Western conference title hung on the outcome. Should the Bucks win over the Illini, and Northwestern repeat its 1936 conquest of Minnesota, the Ohioans could move into the undisputed championship by beating Michigan in next Saturday's finale at Ann Arbor.

Bucks Face Tough Task.

The Bucks, however, were expected to have a tough chore in getting past the Illinois squad of huskies, which last week turned in a startling 6 to 0 win over Northwestern. Ohio's offense was crippled, too, as a result of last week's bruising battle with Indiana, a pair of the regular halltoters, Mike Kabealo and Johnny Rabb, being on the bench.

As a result Jim McDonald moved from quarterback to fullback, with Nick Wasylik taking over the signal-calling berth, while Miller replaced Kabealo at the all-important left halfback position. Nor was the Buck line, intact again after being riddled by injuries, given an edge over the Illinois stalwarts.

Illinois, arriving late Friday afternoon, called off the usual signal practice yesterday, Coach Bob Zuppke declaring the "practice session wouldn't make or break us, and if we're due to lose this one we'll do it the easy way."

Ohio, however, ran through a short workout, despite a heavy rain which swept over the Buckeye stadium.

Teams Stack Up Even.

The teams stacked up about even in weight, the Illinoi being the heaviest Zuppke has coached in his 25 years at Champaign. In the backfield the visitors were given the advantage in versatility and speed.

TRAINER FOUND DEAD

BALTIMORE —(U.P.)— Harold J. Thompson, head trainer of Col. E. R. Bradley's prominent racing stable, was found dead in bed in a local hotel here yesterday.

Thompson apparently died in his sleep of heart failure. He was found dead by hotel employes when he failed to answer the call of his chauffeur who was to take him to the Pimlico racetrack.

Thompson, affectionately known as "Derby Dick" because of his successful training of four Kntucky derby winners for his employer, was 56 years old.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XIV.

"I know," Elna breathed, remembering Curtis Graham's party.

"She told me again and again that she wished she were rid of me. My affection for her has been gone for so long that I wasn't even hurt. I just went on my way, as your father would say, concentrating on my work. She found that I was not just enduring, but somehow satisfied. She couldn't stand that. She couldn't stand having no power at all to make things disagreeable. So she's been trying to hurt me throughh someone else. It would be the only thing she would think of. She is not sure who it is, but of course the person is you."

"It's certainly not my idea of love," Elna said gently. "But whoever is waiting is waiting. Do we take it, whatever it is?"

As if in answer to her words, the buzzer sounded again.

* * *

She pressed the buzzer. Then, as he heard the rapid clackety-clackety of feminine high heels ascending the stairs, she flung the door wide, defenseless.

There was no time to warn Roger.

"Come in," she said coolly to the panting figure at the door.

"So I've found you!"

Holly flung herself against the door, gasping.

Indignation, terror, pity spun through Elna's mind. Roger's contempt for Holly would be a contempt hard for Holly to bear. But no one had the right to invade this house against her will.

* * *

Elna was frightened; also she was angry, but something desperate must have brought Holly to her.

"That's quite all right. I'm not playing hide-and-go-seek. I'm always glad to see you, of course," she said, as if welcoming a casual visitor. "You could have reached me at any time through the laboratory phone, you know."

"You know that's not what I mean — you!" The words strangled in Holly's throat. She still leaned rigid and taut against the open door.

Looking at the face before her, streaked with tears, contorted by primitive emotion, Elna was swept with sympathy. It must have been hell for Holly, loving the man she could never reach, blindly striking out against him in the cruelty of that pain.

"Is something the matter? You look ill," she said coolly.

"The matter? You can say that to me?"

"Why not?" Elna answered. Be proud above all, her father had said. "Perhaps if you're in any trouble, you will be relieved to know that your husband is here," she said. "Since I work all day, he has been kind enough to come to me after hours sometimes in connection with the affairs of my father's estate."

"That's what you call it!" Holly's voice rose to hysteria.

"I have nothing else to call it." Elna's voice was steadying. "Won't you come in?" Her firm hand under Holly's elbow led her into the living room.

The room was as she had left it—the two sauterne glasses, the salad tray on the tea table. Roger was poring over papers from the open brief case on his lap. The papers, she noted with a quick sidewise glance, pertained to the Jepson estate. He had thought quickly.

"Mrs. Ainsworth has called for you, Mr. Ainsworth," Elna said. The room, the world itself seemed unreal. "Perhaps she would like to have you take her home. If so, our business can easily wait."

Elna saw Holly's eyes dart about the room, fasten on the two glasses. "Won't you have a glass of wine?" she asked. "I had finished my own dinner, of course, when he brought me these papers to sign, but he seemed to find a glass of light wine not too bad."

Holly ignored the smooth invitation. "So this is the woman! So this is where you come!" Her words shot at Roger with wild fury.

* * *

Roger folded the papers into the brief case, snapped it shut, and deliberately fastened the straps.

"This is Miss Jepson, certainly. I am sorry if you are disturbed about something. Is there anything I can do?"

Instantly Elna knew that he had taken the wrong note. His coolness was worse than hatred. It was utter indifference.

"Shall we go now?" he said with chill courtesy. "It would be unfortunate for you to make a scene before one of my clients."

"Your clients—whom you visit secretly! Do you think I'm a fool? Do you think I don't know? That I didn't follow you?"

"There's nothing for you to know or not to know," Roger's voice held its icy imperturbability. "Pardon me, Miss Jepson, for Mrs. Ainsworth's apparent misunderstanding. I hope you will forgive any inconvenience this unusual family conversation may cause."

Elna's hands fluttered forward, then dropped at her sides. Couldn't he see that one kindly word, an arm about Holly's shoulders, would have dissolved the whole tenseness of the scene in tears? Granted that he had been goaded, might he not lay aside his self-control, his strength that was an insult to Holly's weakness?

* * *

Holly was trembling from head to foot, supporting herself with both hands against the heavy mahogany table in the middle of the room. Elna slipped silently from the room and a moment later returned with a glass of the pale sauterne.

"There's no point in getting excited," Roger was saying. Elaborately he stooped to poke the fire.

"Heavens!" Elna inwardly exclaimed. "Doesn't he know that nothing more infuriates an excited woman than to be told that she is excited?"

"Won't you try this wine?" she said almost gaily. "It's all my fault, really. I see perfectly how you could misunderstand. But your husband has managed my father's estate ever since his death. I can't handle these affairs in his office hours, so sometimes I have imposed on him when my work was finished. I really am just a client, you see. If there's any real trouble, why not go home now and talk it over in private there?"

By the violence with which Holly seized the glass, drained it at a gulp, and flung it unnoticing on the table behind her, Elna knew that she had failed.

"I'll attend to you later, you snake—you Judas!" Holly cried, tears streaming down her cheeks.

"Can't we sit down and be calm about things?" Elna said, quietly. "I'd be glad to tell you the whole truth, if that would help you."

She sought Roger's eyes for encouragement, but they were turned away from her, brooding on the fire.

"No!" Holly's monosyllable cracked.

Elna sank into a chair. She had tried. She had failed. Let them fight it out, then. The one thing she could not do was to go away, leaving Roger defenseless. Their voices came from far away.

"You told me you were working at the office tonight." Holly was speaking with a horrible calm, the end of despair. "Well, I followed you. I saw you leave your car, turn the lights on in the office to fool me, and come down. I followed you down this street and watched through the outer door to see which button you pushed. You think I have no brains, but I had brains enough for that, didn't I?"

"On the contrary, you merely had bad manners."

"Do you deny that this—this woman has this apartment under an assumed name?" The words crackled like firecrackers.

"If you care for a denial, I am willing to give it to you. It may be sublet, for all I know."

* * *

Elna's hand rested lightly on the top of the tea table. Holly was fumbling in her bag, but looked up at Elna's sudden motion.

"You'll stand up for him, I suppose," she mumbled.

"I'm not standing up for anybody, even for myself—just for reality," Elna said, in a cool voice. "It is quite true that I live alone and slipped away to do it. My father's death left me—well, not wanting to run into relatives much. It is true that I know nothing whatever about settling an estate—my line being chemistry. My father wanted his old friend, your husband's father, to do it, but his retirement put the burden on your husband's shoulders. He has been both efficient and generous—because of that old friendship. I give you my word of honor that your husband and I have never, at any time, been more than friends. I grant that we are friends as well as business associates—but nothing more."

"Your — word — of—honor," Holly whispered. "You have no honor. You have taken my husband from me. And I found you out."

"No." Elna shook her head soberly. "You have taken him from you—you yourself. It is nothing I can help."

"I don't believe you—I don't believe you!" Holly's voice rose to a scream. "You get him at a moment, because you have brains. Why can't he be like other people? He despises me!"

Elna nodded her head. This was true. Perhaps this harshness of truth would help.

"I do despise you." Roger broke his long silence. "I despise you more than anyone on earth. You have nagged me once too often. So what?"

"So this!" Holly's face was contorted by frustration, bitterness. The bag snapped open. A heavy army pistol wavered in her hand. "I have stood too much!" The writhing lips made the words almost unintelligible. "I have stood too much!" Holly repeated, as if she were only saying again a sentence that had pounded again and again in her mind. "Now I will get you both, and call it quits. I'll be rid of you then." The words ended in a sob.

"No, that would be foolish. It would be a mistake. I am sure it would." Elna's mind flashed sidewise in surprise that she was not afraid. "You would regret it, I think."

"You — you cold fish — you highbrow, grinning there!"

"I did not know I was smiling," Elna said. "I have never thought of myself as a highbrown." She longed to say that she knew life was hard for Holly, and that it was hard for her too. But the words would not come out. They would have been appeal for pity.

"I am more sorry for you than for any woman I have known," she said, "because you are about to be the most irrational and the silliest. If that is being highbrow, make the most of it." She was caught up in the anger that enveloped her like flame.

"Your husband never intended to leave you or to be untrue to you—at least he has said so, and I believe him. You are doing this for nothing, because you are a fool, but I suppose you can't help that. You'll plunge yourself and him into trouble, but you think of nothing but your own emotions, which you will manage to justify. I tried to stop you, not for my sake, but your own. I took the wronk way, I admit. But I can't do anything more."

Elna stood straight against the wall, her white dress swirling around her, the disregarded cigaret still burning in its ivory holder between her steady fingers.

"Aren't you even human? You — you untouchable!" Holly screamed hysterically. "I'll show you whether you can be reached or not!- You — you husband stealer!"

* * *

Elna could not bear to look again at the creeping figure on the floor. She could not bear to remember Roger as ignominious—until she suddenly thought that no one's cowardice would ever matter to her again.

"Very well, Holly, have it your own way," she said, taking a last puff at the cigaret.

"I can't break you, I never could break either of you—except this way!" Holly sobbed.

She stepped forward. The wildly waving pistol steadied in her hand. Elna was looking straight into the black hole of the barrel, focussed directly between her eyes. It seemed to fill the entire room.

The next moment she wanted to shout wildly her joy that Roger's creeping had not been cowardice after all! But there was not time.

She saw it all.

Virtually forgotten, Roger slipped behind Holly, the poker in his hand. He waited until the pistol was still. Then with an unexpected upward thrust, he hurled it from her hand, sent it spinning across the room. Intent on quietness and strategy, he had seemingly disregarded Elna and concentrated on his purpose.

The pistol banged againstt the opposite wall. Roger glanced upward, the poker still in his hand.

GIVES WARNING

City Threatens to Shut Off Water of 500 Delinquents.

Nearly 500 west side water customers were threatened with having their water supply cut off because of failure to pay their current October water and sewer rental bills, Ralph A. Hughes, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments, said today.

The delinquent notices, with the 10 per cent penalty added, were placed in the mails today. The overdue sewage billing amounts to approximately $1,000, and the water billing nearly $2,500, Hughes stated.

He added that the water department might shut off the water without any further notice to the consumer, and pointed out that a $1 reconnection charge would be made before the service can be turned on again.

ALLOW FUNDS TO IMPROVE JAIL

Cuyahoga Commissioners Seek To Make It Escape Proof.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)—Cuyahoga county commissioners have approved expenditure of $15,000 to make the county jail escape proof.

Improvements include installation of an electric eye like the one at the federal Alcatraz prison which will immediately detect any metal carried on the person of a prisoner or visitor.

A bullet-proof glass turret will be installed at the basement entrance where guards admit new prisoners and release old ones. Fine-mesh screening will be placed over all windows to prevent prisoners from throwing out messages or climbing onto setback roofs.

FATHER OF FIVE PLEADS GUILTY

Gets 6 Months Suspended Sentence on Non-Support Charge.

Pleading guilty to a non-support charge when arraigned before Probate Judge C. J. Anderson yesterday, Clyde Cleveland, 38, Mansfield, was given a six-months suspended sentence in the Columbus workhouse.

Cleveland was cited on an affidavit filed by his wife, Mary, who charged that he had failed to provide for her and five minor children.

The defendant was ordered to contribute at least $12 a week to the support of his family or serve out the sentence.

SOLVES PROBLEM

Theater Manager Avoids Noise by 'Special' Popcorn Bags.

ELKO, Nev.—(U.P.)—Patrons of Elko's two theaters saw their shows in quiet after a week's siege in which younger patrons added to the sound of various films by spirited popcorn bag "popping." The management, with co-operation of a nearby confectionery, solved the problem by punching 20 holes in the bottom of each bag.

PASTOR SCORES MEN GOSSIPERS

They're Worse Than Women, He Says In Sermon, Blaming Troubles on 'Talk.'

PUEBLO, Col.—(U.P.)—Men gossip more— and worse— than women ever thought of doing, Dr. Will Gordon told his First Baptist church congregation here in a sermon in which he traced the cause of the troubles of the world to "too much talk."

"Even in the unhappy accomplishments which are supposed to be all womanish—gossip, for instance — men are far and away the greatest offenders," the minister said' "Men gossip more, gossip worse—and about worse subjects—than women ever do."

Dr. Gordon asserted that "too much talk is the root of all human strife and inhuman cruelty and offered to right the current wrongs of civilization by imposing a seven day "gospel of absolute silence" over the entire world.

"The trouble with people in Pueblo and Colorado and in the nation and world at large is that people talk too much. The American home is in a bad way because of too much talk. Business is bad because of too much talk. The church has been cheapened by too much talk.

"Talk brought about the war in Spain and between Japan and China."

Ohio State Gets $69,000 To Study Radio In Schools

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A two-year study of radio broadcasts for schools will be undertaken at Ohio State university with a $69,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation, it has been announced.

The valuation of educational programs will be one of a series of studies sponsored by the Federal Radio Education committee, an organization of 20 broadcasters and 20 educators appointed by the Federal Communications commission.

Evaluation of broadcasts will be undertaken in three general fields: social studies, science and arts (English and music).

The survey will operate through four experimental centers; the New York, California area, Chicago area and the Cleveland area. In each of these areas, rural and city teachers will be invited to sit in conference with broadcasters frequently.

Although radio broadcasts for school use have been on the air for several years, it was felt that their effectiveness is hindered by the lack of evidence as to what children may be expected to gain from such broadcasts.

DIVORCE IDEAS UPSET

COQUILLE, Ore.—(U.P.)—It may be fairly easy to sever martial ties nowadays, but not so easy as one woman thought. Going to the office of the clerk of the circuit court here, the woman asked, "Is this the place where one gets a divorce?" When informed it was, she replied: "Well, I want one."

MART LEADERS SLIP DURING EARLY TRADING

Wall Street Waits Roosevelt Message at Special Session of Congress Monday.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Leading stocks slipped a cog or so in today's market.

Traders generally remained in neutral territory pending the convening of congress in special session Monday and the delivery of the presidential message.

That the campaign for easy credit is not being neglected was indicated by this week's federal reserve statement which disclosed purchases of $10,400,000 of government bonds, the first in six months.

Although the amount bought was comparatively small, the financial sector interpreted the step as a sign the board desired to give continued emphasis to a change in its policy from that in the earlier part of the year when it tightened credit strings.

On the cloudy side of the picture was a sharp decline in machine tool orders in October. Considered by some an important economic barometer, the National Machine Tool Builders association index for last month was off 28 per cent from September to the lowest point since November, 1936.

JAPAN DRIVING BACK CHINESE

Peace conference, today told the representatives of 18 other participating governments there were "compelling reasons" for Japan to co-operate with the conference.

Davis expressed a hope Japan would "still see the way clear to doing so."

He reiterated, however, the conviction that respect for treaties and observance of the pledged word were the only possible basis "for an equitable, lasting solution of the Sino-Japanese conflict."

Japan, a signatory of the nine-power treaty to protect China, under which the Brussels conference was called, had refused two invitations to participate in the international efforts to find an avenue to peace in her war with China.

Davis spoke with the heads of other delegations in consideration of the latest Japanese rebuff at the start of deliberations on a possible showdown with Tokyo.

The conference considered making an historical declaration, putting on record its efforts to mediate the conflict and at the same time publicly blaming Japan for continuance of hostilities.

PASTOR FIRM

But Says He'll Tell Bishop of Rebuff to Windsor.

PARIS —(AP)— Rev. J. L. C. Dart—asked by his superior for information on his rebuff to the Duke of Windsor—said today he probably would answer but "no one on this earth has the ecclesiastical right to demand on explanation of me; neither the Bishop of Fulham, the Archbishop of Cantebury nor anyone else."

Rt. Rev. Basil Staunton Batty, Bishop of Fulham, wrote from England asking details of the situation created by Rev. Dart's remarks on Windsor's plan to attend Armistice day services at St. George's church.

Rev Dart said "I would rather the duke did not attend the services."

The vicar also had commented on the attitude of the church of England toward divorce and remarriage, reopening church criticism of the former monarch's marriage to a divorcee.

Arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court on a statutory charge, Hoover pleaded innocent and was bound over to the common pleas court under $500 bond.

The charges, involving a 20-year-old Mifflin township girl, were filed by her mother Monday.

However, Hoover was taken to the reformatory today by Sheriff's deputies and will face the charge upon the expiration of his term there.

MRS. HAHN SOBS OVER LETTER

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Anna Marie Hahn, convicted of the poison slaying of Jacob Wagner, 78, a week ago, wept in her county jail cell today when she received a letter from her mother in Fussen, Germany.

Warden Andrew Frank said the letter was translated by a matron before it was given to the 31-year-old mother facing the death penalty. Frank said it made no reference to Mrs. Hahn's trial.

Frank reported the blond prisoner was in a highly nervous condition and was showing concern for the welfare of her son, Oscar, 12.

EX-INMATES IN KIDNAPING CASE

taken to Huntington today for arraignment.

Seder was kidnaped Nov. 1. On Nov. 6 a note was mailed in the Huntington postoffice to his son, Arthur Raymond Seder, of St. Paul, Minn., demanding $50,000 ransom. He went to the G-Men and nothing was known of the kidnaping until the minister escaped his crude prison where he had suffered from exposure, and two of the alleged kidnapers had been arrested. It was emphasized that no ransom had been paid.

Recovers Rapidly.

Seder was taken to a hospital where, despite his age and his suffering, he was recovering rapidly from his experience.

Booth once rented an apartment from Seder and had become friendly with him. On one occasion, G-Men said, Booth got Seder to vouch for a $30 check which subsequently bounced. On Nov. 1, the agents said, Booth went to Seder's home here with a $60 check to cover it and asked the aged man to step outside to an automobile, which belonged to Booth's father, to meet some friends.

Atkins and Travis were alleged to have been waiting in the car. Seder was forced to enter it and was driven to the abandoned coal mine seven miles from Wayne, W. Va. There, the agents said, he was imprisoned in a cold, damp chamber 30 feet underground.

Weakened by exposure and shock, he managed to crawl out yesterday. A farmer heard his cries and found him lying exhausted near the entrance to the mine. His clothing was covered with blood and he had received numerous scratches and bruises.

STILL GAINING

Injured Student Given Fifth Blood Transfusion.

Michael Ondov, 24, Wittenberg college senior, in a critical condiiton at General hospital for the past week as the result of an automobile accident, continued to show gradual improvement, hospital attendants reported today.

Ondov, who is suffering with a broken back, has been given five blood transfusions in an effort to save his life. The fifth transfusion was given Thursday morning. Donor of the blood was Harold Albert, a student at the Hamma Divinity school at Wittenberg.

Ondov was injured in an accident near Hayesville, when a car in which he and six other students were returning to their homes, overturned.

ROBS STATION AT POINT OF GUN

Middle-Aged Man Gets $22 in Early Morning Hold-Up.

A middle-aged man flashing a small blue steel revolver early today walked into the Mansfield Transfer filling station at 171 North Franklin avenue, and at the point of the gun forced Kenneth Hildebrandt, the attendant, to turn over $22.

Hildebrandt, who was alone in the station at 1 a. m. told police that the man walked in the station and robbed him of the receipts which he had in his pocket.

Flourishing his gun, the intruder backed through the door and ran to a green sedan at the curb. Hildebrandt said the car sped south on Franklin and by the time he had reached the sidewalk, it was too far away for him to make out the license.

Police said they were given a complete description of the robber.

POMERENE DIES AT CLEVELAND

Former Senator Was Native of Holmes County, Graduate of Hayesville School.

ly after 6 p. m. yesterday.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Monday from the Presbyterian Church of the Covenant, Cleveland, and burial will be in Eastlawn cemetery, Canton.

Started Career in 1887.

Pomerene began his political career in 1887 as city solicitor at Canton. He later served three years as Stark county prosecutor and was named Democratic state convention chairman in 1910. He was elected to the United States senate the following year.

He retired from public life soon after President Franklin D. Roosevelt took office in 1933 and since then had lived in a Cleveland apartment hotel.

Leader Under Wilson.

Pomerene served in the United States senate from 1910 to 1922 and was a leader of the body during his first term under President Woodrow Wilson.

He won his greatest national prominence, however, in 1924 when President Calvin Coolidge named his as special counsel in charge of the prosecution in the Teapot Dome oil scandal. Again in 1932, Herbert Hoover, another Republican president, honored him with an appointment to the chairmanship of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He held that post until his retirement in 1933.

Pomerene's rise from local to state and national political circles was rapid. After studying at the Vermilion institute, at Hayesville, Ashland county, he was graduated with high honors from Princeton university in 1884. Two years later he was admitted to the Ohio bar and was on his way to political fame.

As a senator he was regarded as independently minded, often leaving the Democratic ranks to support a Republican if he considered it the best move. He was one of the ablest orators ever to serve in the senate.

He was first boomed for the presidential nomination in 1919 but the movement failed to gain national proportions. He was again a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1928, and turned his support to Alfred E. Smith when he won the party's support at the convention.

BILLINGS, Mont. —(AP)—Sen. Wheeler (D-Mont.) a leading opponent of President Roosevelt's court re-organization program, praised the chief executive today as "the one United States president who has done more for the workers and the common people than any other."

"The job of president today is the toughest that it has ever been . . .," Wheeler said.

Saying America faces an increasing threat of war, he declared he would not vote for war.

SIMPSON CIRCUS SETS NEW MARK

3,500, Largest Crowd In School History, Have Fun at Annual Carnival.

John Simpson junior high school's annual carnival and circus staged at the Senior high school last night, attracted more than 3,500 persons.

The circus, the third to be presented by the school, drew a larger crowd than the two previous shows. For the first time the show was held away from the Simpson building. The change to the senior building was made because of the lack of space at Simpson.

The main show of the circus was in the auditorium and was presented by students of the school. It included numbers by the boys' and girls' glee clubs and gym classes, the band, and several acts by individual students. Dan Haber, of the school faculty, acted as master of ceremonies.

The circus midway occupied the first floor, and included concessions of all kinds. James Brownscombe acted as barker. Throughout the evening there was dancing in the gymnasium to the music of Harold Duda's orchestra.

Assisting students with the circus were members of the school's Parent-Teacher association, sponsors of the affair. Proceeds will go toward the purchasing of new band uniforms an dother school equipment.

Business Slump Uppermost as Congress Session Nears

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

A NUMBER of good folks were scandalized this week when Cleveland authorities declared war on bingo games. Even more horror-stricken were they when the chief of police of the city ordered his men to concentrate on "beer parlors and restaurants; leave the churches and fraternal organizations until later."

It is probably the first time that churches have been commonly indicted with beer parlors for gambling. Sounds terrible, doesn't it? Especially in view of the fact that churches are the most determined critics of slot machines and betting on the horses, which are in exactly the same category of gambling.

The federal postal authorities make this distinction between card games and such games as bingo, keno, bunco and similar games: bridge, 500, pinochle and euchre are games of skill and knowledge, even though played for money, while bingo is purely a game of chance.

* * *

BUT THERE is this to say for bingo as played by Sunday school classes and fraternal organizations—it is far more harmless than shooting craps, playing the slot machines and the horse books; it is not a tantalizing will-o-wisp that leads small boys, and men with small-boy complexes, to spend a great deal more money than they can afford. It is merely a mild outlet for the great American passion for chance winnings.

Bingo is poor man's roulette, with cash or prizes as the winnings.

In all fairness, a town that puts a ban on bingo, keno and bunco, should be very, very sure first that the more dangerous and insidious forms of gambling are not being operated in secluded corners.

THE PRESIDENT said, in effect, this week, that he will reduce taxes, increase farm and relief expenditures—and balance the budget.

Can it be that those smarty Republican jokes about the President being the Almighty have had their effect and Mr. Roosevelt really BELIEVES them?

DID YOU notice that in the Armistice parade there were no veterans of the Civil war? They do not ride in parades any more. But it is 72 years since the war ended, and it is remarkable that so many of them are still alive.

There will be few, if any, veterans of the World war in the Armistice parade 72 years after the ending of that conflict. For the past five years they have been dying at the rate of more than 30,000 a year, increasing a few thousand each year.

A news story this week said "83 American veterans of the World war die each 24 hours . . . 52,000 are in hospitals and institutions. . . . Six times that number are without jobs . . . some have no eyesight, others are maimed of limb and mind. . . To date the war has cost the United States $46,193,000,000. . . ."

In addition to the 30,000 who die each year, there are several thousand more who go into permanent seclusion in psychopathic institutions, and the number of these increases alarmingly each year. Insanity and tuberculosis will not have reached their peak among World war veterans for several years, according to heads of the Veterans Bureau.

Wars are bigger and better in each century, as men become more adept at killing each other.

R. E. HOOEY, sports editor of the Ohio State Journal, Columbus, has the weakness which afflicts so many commentators; he jumps at conclusions without due regard for actual facts. All of which is gentle admonition for the gentleman of the press who said in a recent column:

"Sandusky high school has a 120-piece band playing at all its football games and 'tis said it's the best scholastic band in the country . . ."

Who said so? It doesn't play at all the games, because it didn't play here, and it isn't the best scholastic band in the country because, we're told, it isn't as good as Mansfield's band which doesn't claim to be the best.

Anyway, we've got 123 members in our band and they DO play for all of our games. And let's see a band that can beat it for appearance.

Come to Mansfield sometime, Mr. Hooey. You've got things to see.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

Most people love a fire when it isn't their own but Darryl Zanuck loves a fire enough to gamble $500,000 on the spectacularly hot sequences of his pet production, "In Old Chicago."

Just before the "take" the studio smokepots get going, belching black clouds over the scene. And then—the fire. All at once Mrs. O'Leary's house spits fire. From neighboring roofs and windows great sheets of flame leap forth, hissing and roaring. A tree in the street, brittle and dry, joins the mad chorus of flame, and this time the panic is real, or looks it. The firemen are flame-pouncing on their ladders while faint streams of water attack the inferno. The women and children are scurrying past the camera, fast as they can to get out of the heat . . .

It's all over in two minutes. And while the movie brokers are collecting their overalls checks, real firemen are putting out the fire with modern equipment.

The Fire Starts.

More Witnesses Called to Accuse Sheriff

SEEKS TO PROVE MURDER VICTIM NAMED KILLER

State Summons Physicians to Testify G.O.P. Leader Said Officer Slugged Him.

POMEROY — (U.P.) — The state called additional medical witnesses today in an effort to prove that Lafe Williamson, Republican leader, in a deathbed statement, named Roscoe G. Fowler, suspended sheriff, as his assailant following a dance at the Eagles' club last June.

Dr Charles E. Holzer, chief surgeon at the Holzer hospital where Williamson was confined, told the court yesterday that the Republican leader told him several days after he was admitted, "Doc, Fowler, the —— finally got me."

Contends Blow Fatal.

The state charges Williamson died from a blackjack blow dealt by Fowler. He died about three weeks after he was found unconscious in front of the Eagles' club.

Jurors were ordered from the courtroom by Judge Frank M. Acton when Dr. Holzer offered the testimony. They were later admitted when the judge overruled defense objections and the surgeon repeated the alleged statement.

Dr Holzer said Williamson repeated the charge "out of a clear sky" the following morning, omitting the word "finally."

Under questioning by Defense Counsel Curtis Reed, the doctor agreed Williamson was in a "very deep coma" when admitted to the hospital and conceded that "a man suffering from a severe head injury may tell a story that he believes to be true when it merely is a dream fancy with scarcely a word of truth."

In direct testimony, however, Dr Holzer said he believed Williamson was rational when he made the statement.

CALLS DAVEY LABOR'S ENEMY

Lamb, CIO Attorney, Declares State Does 'Dirty Work' In Strike Breaking.

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—Edward Lamb, Ohio counsel for the Committee for Industrial Organization, called Governor Davey an "enemy of labor," and pleaded for unity between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor, in a radio address here last night.

Lamb's charges were made in reply to the governor's Tuesday night speech before the Ohio Society of New York, in which the chief executive had defended his action in calling troops to bring an end to the "little steel" strike last summer.

The attorney charged the governor's speech was in effect an attempt to prejudice jurors in Trumbull county where Gus Hall, steel union organizer will soon go on trial.

The CIO counselor said: "the state does the dirty work of the company attempting to break the strike" by the use of National guardsmen and through action of the courts.

"Labor in Ohio will shortly initiate a constitutional amendment to strip the courts of their strike breaking activities. The CIO," he said, "is a responsible organization, standing for peaceful relationships between employers and employes.

"Responsible labor organizations cannot favor violence for the simple reason that the workers are the victims of industrial violence. Eighteen steel strikers were murdered this summer and the prosecutors are now so busily engaged in railroading strikers to jail that they never found time to indict the murderers of these innocent pickets."

McFarland said the whole process should be completed within three or four days.

U. S. FINISHES PLANS TO COUNT NATION'S UNEMPLOYED TUESDAY

WASHINGTON —(A.P.)— Administrator John D. Biggers gave final instructions today to his organization which on Tuesday will begin the gigantic task of taking a national census of the unemployed.

Some 150,000 regular and special postmen will deliver on that day unemployment report cards to every dwelling—cottage and mansion, flop house and deluxe apartment alike—in the United States, Hawaii, and Alaska.

More than 85 million cards, which required 50 carloads of paper stock, have been printed. They must be returned in the mail before Saturday midnight, Nov. 20.

Only the unemployed and partly employed are expected to fill them out. No postage is required, and all information will be confidential.

The 14-point questionnaire is designed to show:

Total number of unemployed, total number of partly employed, age groups of the idle, geographical location of the idle, and work qualifications of the unemployed and industries which they are fitted by training to engage in.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., endorsed the census over the radio last night, saying business alone ultimately could provide jobs for the unemployed "on a continuing basis and on an adequate scale."

Rockefeller appealed for "accurate answers" and commented that the great majority of the unemployed are "anxiously looking for the opportunity to get back to work."

President Roosevelt will discuss the census tomorrow at 10:30 p. m. eastern standard time in a nation-wide broadcast.

Roosevelt's 'One-Man Control Blasted In Speech By Hoover

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Former President Herbert Hoover charged Friday night that President Roosevelt hoped to replace the merit system in government with "one-man control."

Mr. Hoover spoke at the dedication of the School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse university.

Mr. Hoover denounced the plan for reorganization of the federal government.

"It proposes," he said, "to abolish the civil service commission, which has for 50 years given fine service and held high standards of training and freedom from politics in public service.

"The new plan proposes to substitute one-man control. No matter what the words of that bill may purport to mean, it is clear that the plan is to destroy the progress we have made and substitute personal political control."

Mr. Hoover chided college-trained persons for not taking greater interest in government.

"They are too prone to hold themselves aloof from the hurly-burly of a political conflict . . . mere voting is a paltry price to pay for the privilege of living under a free government."

The only way to "get rid of these vile municipal political machines" which frustrate self-government, Mr. Hoover said, is to train young men and women "to go into party organization to see that clean government is maintained."

Neither "gorgeous phrases of salvation" nor "unregulated competition" will lead to anything but "destruction of the most precious possession of our race — intellectual and spiritual liberty," he said.

A meeting of the directors and the election of officers will be held. Arrangements are being made to accomodate 275 members.

GIRL MISSING

Disappears As She Leaves Parents' Car In Detroit.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—Police of the special investigation squad reported today they were searching for 15 year old Marjorie Mitchell who disappeared a few hours after she had arrived here with her parents and sister from their Polson, Mont. home last night.

Marjorie disappeared when she left the parked family automobile, announcing she was going to a nearby service station.

Up and Down THE STREET

A Mansfield father, who as the dad of several grown daughters, is used to having strange young men around the house, but he stopped the other morning when he found an unidentified guest asleep on the parlor sofa when he arose to go to work. There were virgrous denials from the daughters when they were accused of forgetting to send the visitor home, and before the investigation was well under way the stranger made quiet exit. It's all still a mystery, but the dad still isn't sure that one of the daughters isn't holding out on him.

Although this year's World series baseball games are still more or less fresh in the recollections of Mansfield sports followers, there evidently is one person who couldn't recall the outcome of the strictly New York affair. This person, explaining he had a bet, telephoned The News-Journal sports department with the query "The Giants won, didn't they?" Told the Yankees were the winners, his voice dropped and he hung up with a disgusted "Well I'll be a—"

Probably a new high in the number of birthday greeting cards received by one person was set yesterday by Miss Julia Bessemer, waitress at the West Fourth street market restaurant, who was the recipient of 39 cards from friends and customers. Besides the "shower" of cards, Miss Bessemer also received a dozen red roses.

There probably isn't much in a name, but the tags of two gridders in the Marion-Mt. Vernon game played at Marion last night came within just one letter of creating a striking coincidence. Playing right end for Marion was Hudson, while in the same position for Mt. Vernon was Rine. If the latter had just had an "h" in his name, everything would have been perfect.

The police department offices in the city building now have the appearance of the executive chambers of a large business firm. Chief Meade K. Bates and other officers of the department have neat little plaques bearing their names and titles on their desks. They were made by inmates of the reformatory.

MISSIONARY SPEAKS

SHELBY—Rev. George Waters, missionary from China, will speak tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at the First Baptist church, according to Rev. Ralph Zundel, pastor, on the missionary problems in China. He will also discuss the Sino-Jap war now in progress in that country.

LEGISLATORS URGING TAX MODIFICATION

Speaker Warns Against Hasty Action; Crop Control to Be First Business.

WASHINGTON—(A.P.)— Congress will meet Monday to tackle unfinished farm and labor legislation in a special session already overcast by concern about the business outlook.

Although pledged to make crop control the first business, there were indications from some members that possible steps to improve the economic situation were uppermost in their minds.

Chairman O'Connor (D-NY) of the house rules committee suggested congress try to stimulate business by immediate tax revision. Many industrial leaders and legislators have contended that capital gains and undivided profits taxes were contributing to business recession, and have urged their modification.

Warns Against Haste.

Speaker Bankhead, however, said tax revision was "too big a problem for hasty action. He and other leaders went ahead with plans to stick to the legislation the president has asked: crop control, wage-hour, government reorganization and regional planning.

Mr. Roosevelt will send a message to congress as soon as it meets at noon Monday, presumably setting forth his views on those subjects. Many members, returning to a refurbished capitol after a recess of less than three months, expressed doubt that even half his program could be completed during the special session.

The senate and house will meet until the Christmas holidays and then adjourn until the regular 1938 session begins on Jan. 3.

Tax revision probably will hold over until that time, as will revision of the anti-trust laws.

Fight Forecast.

Although the house may be able to begin consideration of the farm bill early next week, it appeared that differences expected to arise between it and the senate might prevent early enactment.

Chairman Jones (D-Tex.) reported last night the house agriculture committee was virtually agreed on a bill embodying the principal of voluntary crop control without processing taxes.

Some senators are insisting on compulsory control.

Jones said the house bill would increase expenditures for agriculture about $175,000,000 to $200,000,000 a year and that his group was leaving to the ways and means committee the problem of how to raise the funds.

SUNDAY TOPIC

'Mortals and Immortals' Will Be Scientists Subject.

"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text is: "Because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ" (Galatians 4: 6,7).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto their children. . . . And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it" (Psalms 90:16,17).

ASKS NEW TRIAL IN DAMAGE CASE

Clevelander, Loser In $3,000 Suit, Hits Jury Verdict In Appeal.

Contending that a Richland county common pleas court jury was influenced by "passion and prejudice" in returning a $3,000 damage verdict against him four days ago, M. L. Eckman, Cleveland, today sought a new trial of a suit brought by Miss Ruth Schaaf of near Lexington.

The jury awarded Miss Schaaf damages for the loss of her front teeth in an automobile accident near Lexington in July, 1935, while she was an occupant of Eckman's car.

The award was made following second trial of the case in which Miss Schaaf asked $5,329 charging that the accident occurred when Eckman took his hands from the steering wheel in an attempt to put his arms around her.

In the first hearing of the suit more than a year ago, a verdict for $1,300 was returned for Miss Schaaf. The defendant, contending that the damages were excessive, won a new trial.

The motion for a re-trial of the case this time was filed by Attys. Weldon and Huston, counsel for Eckman.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1937.

Drive carefully tomorrow—somebody must, and it might as well be you.

A New York minister estimates that sin costs this country $13,000,000,000 a year—but the proverbial wage is being quite regularly paid.

According to current issues of several of the weekly magazines, the Duke and Wally have arrived in America and are having a perfectly wonderful time.

Prison for Marijuana Offenders.

JUDGE HUSTON, of Richland county common pleas court, does well in taking cognizance of the spread of marijuana addiction in this community and in moving sternly to discourage further importation or distribution of this dangerous narcotic in Mansfield.

What may not have heretofore been generally understood by school children and the night club habitues who have been playing around with this dope, is that POSSESSION of marijuana is against the law and subjects the offender to heavy fine or imprisonment of from one to five years.

Unlike some of the other narcotics, which injure only the addicts, marijuana users become exceedingly dangerous to other people, the effects of the drug being such as to influence its victims to ruthless murder or to the most atrocious of sex crimes.

Within the past year there has been what appears to be a concerted effort among panderers in the white slave traffic to entice young girls into the use of marijuana as a move toward recruiting the ranks of prostitutes.

Marijuana has been pronounced by authorities on the subject as the deadliest narcotic in existence. Hospitals report that marijuana users are the most desperate patients that come under observation and in some institutions addicts are chained like animals during certain stages of insanity induced by the drug.

It is only fair to school children, and others who are in danger of being lured into use of marijuana, that they should know that experience has shown that incurable insanity almost invariably results from habitual use of this drug for approximately two years, and that any time during that period the victim may commit a major crime—possibly murder or rape—without realization of what is being done.

Effects of marijuana on those who use it are quickly discernible, and, in its early stages, the habit can be broken before the victim becomes an incurable addict. The crusade against marijuana's invasion of Mansfield should be tirelessly continued by police, all law enforcement officials, and citizens in general.

War and Dictatorship.

ACCORDING to Raymond Leslie Buell, president of the Foreign Policy Association, only a dictatorship can keep America out of the next big war.

But isn't a dictatorship more likely to take us in than to keep us out? History certainly shows that tendency. In the history of ancient Rome, war and dictatorship go together. The Roman Republic got along all right with regular elections and civil government in normal times, but appointed a dictator whenever war was started. Eventually there was war so much of the time that dictatorship became a regular thing.

If there is anything that will keep us out of war, perhaps it is the precise opposite of dictatorship—that is, free public choice.

Suppose, as various people are advocating now, it were made unlawful for our government to declare war without a popular referendum. That would at least provide a breathing spell, with time for public debate. And it is hardly conceivable that the American people would vote for war, except in case of armed invasion of our country by a foreign power—an extremely remote possibility.

Labor's Prime Minister.

RAMSEY MACDONALD'S death closed a career that rose to great heights yet ended tragically. The Scotch boy who was born to poverty and hard work, whose formal schooling ended when he was 12 years old, became Great Britain's first Labor Premier. Loved by the people from whom he came, hated and despised during the World War by the super-patriots because of his pacifism, MacDonald stuck to his principles and fought for the rights of the laboring class steadily and courageously until he became leader of the Labor Party.

The tragedy began when he became prime minister. The radical, socialist leader seemed to turn conservative under the tremendous responsibility of that position. Friends who had worked with him in the Labor Party considered him a traitor to its cause. The conservatives never fully accepted him. His Labor government became a Coalition government. Then he retired, to ill health and oblivion. Much of the work he did for international peace has been undone by the present political turmoil in Europe.

History may restore Ramsey MacDonald to a high place among the world's leaders. Perhaps he was only ahead of his time.

Vitamins Become Complicated.

THE little, invisible wonder-workers in food, which make you healthy if you get them in proper quantities, are growing very complicated, getting out of hand and exhausting the alphabet.

It was very simple at first. There was vitamin A, the first one discovered, which had certain virtues. Then others were discovered with other virtues, named respectively vitamins B, C, and D, all playing an essential part in nourishment and health. And still the number grew, until the researchers didn't know where to stop. Then they began to find that there were different varieties within these groups. In vitamin B alone they have discovered six different kinds.

It doesn't matter to laymen. All that people have to do is to eat the foods or take the concentrated essences the doctors tell them to, and they'll get along all right, having better teeth, eyes, nerves, and so on, than their parents had.

But when you look at such things scientifically, they're very puzzling. Almost everything gets more complex, so that the more you know about it, the more you have to learn.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THE majority of our travel remembrances are of hotels. Most of my life has been spent in them. My father was a hotel proprietor. I was once a night clerk and later a hotel press agent. To this day I annex a tingle—in finding lodging in a strange inn.

On the stage—"Grand Hotel," for example—in the movies and in literature, some of the most exciting plots have been hatched in hotels. I never register at a hotel that I do not feel that somewhere behind the scenes a lively drama is brewing.

Every 24 hours in a big city hotel there is material for a dozen newspaper columns, plots for a novel or so and the makings of a play. I recall one bit of high voltage drama at a hotel I was publicizing—and one which a humane medical examiner saved from the headlines.

She was a beautiful woman of notable ancestry who had married out of her class. To a bounder who taught her to drink and use drugs. Deserted, she came to our hotel, pistoled herself, and her hand clenched a scrawl to her husband: "I die cursing you."

There are innumerable hotels that geyser jets of pleasant rememberings for me. That famed St. Nicholas of Cincinnati days—a bandbox of an inn that fairly drenched the patrons with a cut glass luxury. Even 25 years ago its employes changed to evening attire at sundown. Elevators were sprayed with a delicate scent every few hours and the operators wore buckled knee pants and silk stockings, the clerks full evening dress. Always on the breakfast plate a red rose, glistening with dew.

Then the old Planter's in St. Louis, with Tony Faust's restaurant hard by. Through the Planter's spacious lobby roamed the wide-hatted, high-booted cattle dealers from all points. Men who drank whiskey neat, smoked 50-cent cigars while in the city and bestowed silver dollar tips. Somehow I associate the Planter's with the venerable St. Charles in New Orleans in whose rambling dining room with looped hangings, I enjoyed a memorable breakfast—a fare of golden buckwheat cakes, scrambled eggs, sausage cakes and cinnamon-sprinkled apple rings and coffee, the like of which I have rarely tasted before or since.

For 13 years I resided as a paying patron at the Ritz Carlton in New York, and as a bouquet for its managing director, Albert Keller. I can add that not once in that long period was I justified in making a single complaint. So attached to it had I become that it was a long time before I could pass it without a wince—and to stop in now and then is like going back home again.

I also love the rambling old Ritz in Paris, with its inside garden, where fountains rise and fall and patches of flowers are slit by cool gravel walks. I like the Place Vendome side concierge, with his wisp of imperial, so obeisant you'd never suspect he was one of the large stockholders. And Oliver, the head waiter, whose snow white chin whiskers are waxed and curled precisely like a dapper mustache. Hotels, hotels, hotels—like the imposing and restful Breakers at Palm Beach, the Coronado at Coronado Beach, the old timey but comfortable United States at Saratoga the colorful bar at the Regis in Mexico City, the view of Boul Mich from the old Congress in Chicago, and the mint julep crowd at the Seelback in Louisville.

The most comfortable bed ever slept in was at The Dome in Cologne, and there was that jousty water front hotel in Antwerp—the Queen—from whose windows I watched the long line of carters driving the beribboned Percherons with one line all night. The Adlon in Berlin and the gold statue of the ex-kaiser. And the Kaiserin Augustine Victoria at Weimar, where the manager greeted you at the door, acted as room service waiter, and often answered the call for a bell boy.

But the highlight of hotels to me was at the Amstel in Amsterdam, where at 10 o'clock at night I watched in a soft light as bright as day the drifting barges, and Dutch families aboard, along the canals while I ate a supper featuring almost coal black pumpernickel, chilled goat's milk in a stein and five varieties of the tastiest cheese I ever come upon. There's interest, too, around the Savoy in London, which was the original of Arnold Bennett's great novel, Imperial Hotel. Especially the head bell boy in frock coat and ledger-ruled trousers. And Kitty and Collie, the bar maids.

Danger Lurks In Big Social Security Reserve

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — People who grow excited over what could happen to the $50,000,000,000 social security reserve now piling up in the treasury might be interested in what happened to educational trust funds in the states.

The social security money being paid in by employes and employers is used by the federal treasury for current expenses and government I. O. U. notes are substituted for it. It is all perfectly legal—not in the same class, of course, with what has been done by some states to federal school funds.

* * *

Cornell Did All Right.

IN THE years before the Civil war, the government began making land grants to the states for educational purposes. Each state was expected to sell the land at a fair price. The money was to be put in "irrevocable" trusts so that only the interest would be used to help school children learn the better way of life.

Some states did very well. Cornell university is partially supported by a healthy endowment growing out of the wise operation of its share of the New York state allotment. Old Ezra Cornell kept both the land and the money out of the hands of political operators and his name is praised to this day.

It is true the federal government seemed to guard the land grants with all the protective legislation a person could want, the most potent of which was a requirement that if any of the principal of the fund should be lost, strayed, or be stolen, the state would have to make it good.

Some states did the best they could, which often enough was not much. Others had politicians from time to time who looked upon the school endowment funds mainly as a means of pulling friends out of financial holes.

* * *

Individual Loans Made.

MANY a political henchman has wheedled himself a loan from the endowment funds in amounts far out of proportion to the property he left in the hands of the state as security. Some states still own barren mountain ridges and miles of cut-over forest land to show for husky lumps of educational funds.

Some states simply dumped the endowment money into the state treasury to use for salaries and roads. In turn they promised to pay to the schools the yearly equivalent of five per cent interest on the money so diverted. They have to support the schools anyway so it is easy enough for a state to comply with the federal law by specifying that of the $2,500,000 or so appropriated for schools, $1,200,000 is really interest on the endowments.

One western state, finding itself in the midst of an agricultural depression, poured out the school money in the form of loans on farms. Quite a few chunks went to favored sons of the state political party then in power as loans on worthless or nearly worthless properties their owners never expected to redeem.

"It was the price we had to pay for recovery," answered one politician, when called to account by a succeeding administration.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

Those Who Have "No Ump."

"NO UMP!"—don't know who originated that bit of slanguage, but it's a honey. Carries more psychology in its two syllables than a whole encyclopedia. And is a perfect diagnosis for 75 per cent of our modern failures.

Take Jim, for example. Jim's a fine fellow. Not hard to look at. Hard-working, willing, completely reliable. Intelligent, too. And generous to a fault. Sounds like a sure bet, doesn't he?

And yet, at 35 Jim is still just where he was 10 years ago. Hardly any money in the bank. No home or family—though he longs for both. And has never held a really first-class job.

What's wrong? Jim, himself, doesn't know. No man ever wanted harder to be a success. No man was ever more hungry for friends. And as for a wife—Jim's gone with the same nice girl for nine years, and still hasn't gotten enough gumption to propose to her.

But something must be missing! Something is. Jim has everything it takes, with one exception. He has—

"NO UMP!"

Meaning what? Meaning—

No spark . . . no kick . . . no gogettem.

Queer, how many humans are like that! They're willing, eager . . . they long so desperately to be part of the Big Show, they'd give anything they have. And yet—they never make the grade. Something's wrong . . . They haven't what it takes. Like Jim, they have "NO UMP!"

But just what does it take to achieve popularity and power? It takes warmth . . . warmth that reaches out like a clutching, persuasive hand. It takes enthusiasm . . . enthusiasm so dynamic that it breaks down all barriers . . . banishes reluctance, suspicion and fear . . . lifts you and livens you with its irresistible buoyancy.

Enthusiasm—

What's "UMP?"

That's "UMP."

But how can one learn to be enthusiastic?

One can't. Enthusiasm can neither be acquired nor learned. It must be lived. Enthusiasm isn't an inside job. You can't get it by banging a grin on your front teeth . . . or being a Little Bright Eyes . . . or rushing around making Emily Post gestures.

Enthusiasm goes deeper than either flesh or mind . . . it is an arrangement of the spirit. One must banish fear . . . forget self . . . and open the doors of the heart to life itself. Enthusiasm isn't a set of manners . . . it is a willingness to live . . . a hunger for life . . . a joy in living.

And you don't have to worry about that joy. If you're willing to live and hungry for life, that joy will come spontaneously.

PEOPLE WHO ARE REALLY IN LOVE WITH LIFE ARE ALWAYS RADIANT, MAGNETIC. THEY MAY KNOW SORROW AND SHOCK, THEY MAY SUFFER POVERTY AND PAIN . . . BUT LIFE'S OWN ABUNDANCE WILL FILL THEM, GALVANIZE THEM, DRAW OTHERS TO THEM.

Why isn't good, reliable hard-working Jim a success? Why isn't he a proud individual, a beloved husband and father, a happy worker? Because he has NO UMP . . . no enthusiasm . . . no magnetism . . . no irresistible spark.

Somewhere inside, Jim is blocked with fear.

Somewhere inside, Jim is afraid of life . . . unwilling to live. And because Jim is unwilling to live, Jim is unable to give.

AND THOSE WHO CAN'T GIVE, DON'T GET.

Living . . . giving . . . getting in return—

What's "ump?"

THAT'S "UMP!"

Football Without Apologies.

I'M GOING to a football game. And I'll probably make a first-class idiot of myself. . . . I'll fight my way through the crowd and up the stairs of the stadium and find a seat for myself and buy a program and start checking the names and numbers of the players. And when the whistle blows and the first kickoff is made I'll be so tense I'll not be able to say a word.

And for two and a half hours sitting there in that stadium, at the football game I'll be thinking of nothing but football. Not about politics. Or war. Or business. Or fascism or communism or any other ism. Or writing articles. Just football, nothing but. . . . I'll call all the plays and make all the touchdowns on my side. I'll throw the forward passes and catch them, too. I'll be the coach and I'll be the quarterback. And if my team wins I'll be overjoyed, and if it doesn't I'll be quite depressed for half an hour or so after the game.

I'll yell and I'll stand up at exciting moments and I'll hold long conversations with strangers sitting in my row, men and women whom I never saw before but who feel as I do about football.

And I'm making no apologies about how I intend to spend next Saturday afternoon. . . . I know there are millions of very fine and intelligent human beings who never go to football games and who look down their noses at those who do. They think it's silly and stupid for able-bodied individuals to spend an afternoon watching 20 or 30 boys playing "a mere game." How much better it would be, they think, to stay at home and read a good book or work in the yard or be strolling around a golf course getting some real exercise for yourself.

There's a little in what they say, but just the same I'd rather be at the football game. It may be "overemphasized" but I like it.

It may be "vicarious athletics," but I'm not any kind of athlete myself and wouldn't I look funny in a football suit? They may find it dull, but I don't. To me, there are few spectacles grander than two fine teams of young men battling with brain, brawn AND spirit on a green field on a lovely autumn afternoon. I'm not comparing it with great music or great drama or a great painting—I know better than to be so silly—but I do say that it is worth a few hours of my time on a few afternoons in the year.

TODAY IS—

Saturday, Nov. 13. Down in Cartagena, Colombia, they're ending a three-day annual independence celebration. Zodiac sign: Scorpio. A stream of meteors (Leonid showers) is due from the regions of the constellation Leo.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Who remembers when a square piano was called a table piano?

A horse usually looks better as a horse than does its rider as a human being.

An attempt to control thought is an attempt to control action; the average college economic course is an attempt to control action by building a fog bank of economic ignorance.

Family Record.

WHEN a child is born, a record should be made of it, together with that of its parents and grandparents—dates and chronological facts.

It should be in ink and upon good paper—this would be a good job for Grandma. There should be a place of public deposit of this record.

This might mean much to this child in years to come—even something material—and possibly to the world at large.

The average person doesn't know the maiden name of his or her grandmother.

Too many of us have found ourselves living next door to a first cousin without knowing it.

Any of us who have had experience in the research for historical, biographical facts or even legal evidence, knows the difficulty after the 1st generation and its near-impossibility after the 2d generation—and the need for family record.

The last direct heirs of the Wendell estate, a bachelor brother and two sisters, lived for many years in a red brick and stone-trimmed house at the northwest corner of 5th Ave. and 38th St., New York. The house had never been wired for electricity—used a large vacant back yard to exercise their dog. They kept just one aged maid servant—always came to the door with carpet dust and lint in her hair. The office of the Wendell estate was in a small room down on Great Jones St.—one clerk who looked like he had jumped out of one of Dickens' novels. The last of these heirs died a few years ago, leaving an estate of more than 75 million dollars.

There were 7000 claimants and all but seven were thrown out of court for lack of documentary evidence—no family record!

An aged widow died the other day in Philadelphia leaving a 50-million dollar real estate fortune the start of which had been made in the manufacturing of snuff. There was no will and 17,000 persons have filed claims and all but about 17 will be thrown out of court—no documentary evidence—no family record!

Within recent months page after page of legal advertising have appeared in New York newspapers in an effort to locate depositors or their heirs of dead accounts in New York banks, from 15 to 22 years old and in varying sums from $10 up to $10,000, and to a total of more than six million dollars.

Doubtless there are many rightful heirs to these sums, but in the majority of cases they are without documentary proof of relationship to these depositors and the money will revert to the state—no family record!

Story Telling.

THE amateur story teller may bring sunlight into the evening gloom of the home and among friends, but before the public, and not understanding or undervaluing the construction of a story to a telling climax, he invariably becomes a deadly frost under the brilliancy of the footlights.

Tom Nawn, still remembered by many as one of the best story tellers in vaudeville, possessed an instinctive sense of story construction. One of his best narrations ran about as follows:

Alderman Clark was a candidate for re-election.

In his day, petty cases were tried by all Philadelphia aldermen, and Alderman Clark's greatest endorsement for re-election was his kindness in the court of his particular ward of human misery.

A little piccolo-voiced Irishman arranged and presided over a meeting in one of the ward's larger halls. A great crowd of men was milling around the aisles and the little Irishman's gavel fell a good many times before order was restored. Then he spoke up and said:

"Neighbors, we have one with us tonight that without him many of you would have rotted in jail before now. There's many a little girl and boy goin' to school in this parish with good warm shoes and stockings on their feet and books under their arms that wouldn't have 'em without the speaker of the evenin'; there's many a poor widow sittin' by her good warm fire with her barrel of flour in her kitchen that would be without 'em if it wasn't for the one who is about to address you now; there's scarcely a person sittin' here that hasn't felt at some time or other the great kindness of the man who has served all of us so well in the years gone by and who is willin' to serve us again. Boys' it gives me great pleasure to introduce Alderman Clark."

The Alderman, a big, clean-looking, middle-aged fellow, arose.

"Well, boys," he said in a hoarse, low, hesitating voice, "all those things the chairman mentioned ain't no more than doin' my duty. If I done my duty and you want me, you'll re-elect me; if I haven't and you got a better man who can do more'n I can, you won't re-elect me. That's all I can really say, honestly and truthfully, and I thank you for listenin' to me."

There followed a few moments of absolutely dead silence, due to the unexpected shortness of the address. It was broken here and there by feeble applause that increased, however, to greater and still greater volume as the audience came to a gradual realization of the fine, unselfish spirit of Alderman Clark's modest words.

The little Irishman's face registered astonishment at the end of the short speech—even bewilderment. He had taken for granted that his candidate's talk would fill the evening and had made no provisions for other speakers. The prolonged applause, however, gave him time to get his wits together. Swiftly glancing over the audience, he saw not a single man who could make a speech.

And then inspiration came. His face broadened into a good-natured grin—he had found the solution!

Quickly deciding to turn the whole affair into a sort of old-fashioned town meeting and figuring that questions and answers should prove a valuable source of information that would re-elect his candidate, he stepped forward when the applause was greatest.

"Now, boys," he said in a confident manner as soon as the crowd had quieted, "you've all heard what Alderman Clark had to say. The true spirit of American democracy lies in the fact that all have the right to ask questions. American democracy was born in the old New England town meetings where anybody could get right up and either say what he wanted to say or ask about anything he wanted to ask about. And that is the case here right now.

"Now, then, is there anybody in the audience who would like to ask Alderman Clark a question?"

"Yes, you bet there is!" shouted a man from the middle of the hall, swinging his fist angrily. "I like to ask Alderman Clark a question he won't like. I want to know—"

He never finished. One man's fist landed on his jaw, another cracked his lips open, still another closed his eyes, and several pairs of arms pulled him right into the aisle. In no time he was out in the street, kicked into the arms of a policeman, shoved into a patrol wagon and on his way to the police station.

When quiet was again restored, there was a blaze of defiance in the little Irishman's eyes; his high falsetto voice cracked the acoustic properties of the hall with the force of an electric shock and he shouted:

"Is there anyone else in the audience that would like to ask Alderman Clark a question?"

A sense of clear, succinct construction, an unsuspected but logical climax, a good sense of humor and imagination, natural gestures and facial expression under perfect control—all these Tom Nawn possessed.

If you have them or can acquire them through practice and experience, why, you have the secret of successful story telling.
